

Queensland Leaders launches 2014 series, announces expansion

Queensland Leaders members gather for the 2013 graduation dinner.

QUEENSLAND LEADERS has announced significant expansion plans while unveiling its 2014 Executive Series.

"Queensland Leaders received a large number of nominations for the Executive Series, and ultimately selected 26 companies to participate,"

Queensland Leaders general manager Stephen Beirne said.

"Each of these companies will now be provided a unique platform from which to fast-track their opportunity and generate sustainable growth by accessing the necessary knowledge, networks and investment opportunities."

The companies selected for the 2014 Queensland Leaders Executive Series include some of the state's most well-recognised and respected businesses:

Queensland Leaders' special 2013 event at Industry Partner AP Eagers' Porsche showrooms in Brisbane also marked the automotive retail company's 100th year.

Such has been the success of the Executive Series over the past eight years in boosting capability that many companies in regional Queensland have enquired about becoming involved.

As a result, Queensland Leaders recently launched a Regional Series, specifically for leading companies located 150km or more outside of Brisbane.

"These companies directly access their own private network of the state's business leaders," said executive director and founder, James Paulsen.

"With the launch of the Regional Series, companies everywhere are now in a position to take advantage of the resources available regardless of geographic location."

FUTURE LEADERS PROGRAM

Further to the introduction of the Regional Series, the Queensland Leaders Future Leaders Series will shortly open nominations for its inaugural program.

"The Future Leaders Series provides emerging companies and entrepreneurs with the fundamental skills, networks and foundations to build sustainable businesses while taking full advantage of the opportunities ahead," Mr Paulsen said.

In announcing its expansion plans, Queensland Leaders has generated significant interest in interstate and overseas markets.

The recently announced Victorian Leaders is preparing for its initial Executive Series commencing in July, with New South Wales Leaders set to launch shortly afterwards. Guiding Victorian Leaders is former Queensland Leaders Industry Expert representative, Robert Ford.

Mr Paulsen said interest was being fielded from all other States and Territories in Australia along with several international destinations. ■
